Who is This Vendor Assessment For?

NelsonHall's Blockchain Services 2020 Evaluation, provides an assessment of DXC Technology's blockchain services capabilities designed for:

- Sourcing managers investigating sourcing deployments within blockchain and identifying vendor suitability for RFPs
- Operation transformation center of excellence personnel and process decision makers evaluating vendor capabilities for adopting blockchain into operational processes
- Vendor marketing, sales, and business managers developing strategies to identify developments and target opportunities within managed service programs
- Financial analysts and investors covering the blockchain industry and suppliers.

Key Findings & Highlights

Blockchain sits within the innovation category of DXC's playbook, along with other emerging technologies. Client engagements typically follow a three-phase journey of design thinking workshop, agile build phase, and reflect & revise phase.

The company uses a 10-point assessment to determine the suitability of blockchain for client use cases.

DXC's top blockchain platform usage across its projects are R3 Corda, Hyperledger Fabric, Hyperledger Indy, Ethereum, followed by startups. The company has organically developed several accelerators and COTS solutions through its engagements.

DXC Technology uses a centralized delivery framework with CoEs in Poland and India that support its operations worldwide.

DXC's platform partners include Hyperledger and R3 and business partners who include AWS, Google Cloud Platform, Microsoft Azure, and Oracle. Its startup partners include:

- Billon Group (Proof of Stake)
- Evernym (self-sovereign identity)
- SETL (financial services)
- MOBI (transportation).

DXC has founded consortia, including Crypto Valley Association, Swiss Digital Identity and Data Sovereignty Association, and Retail Blockchain Consortium.

DXC Technology targets enterprises with $1bn+ revenue and large entities for its blockchain offerings.
